“We are spoiled for a little valley, with an international presence and wonderful cultural events.”

Based in Ketchum, Idaho, Latham Interiors is a firm dedicated to the needs of Sun Valley's most discerning homeowners. Principal designer Sarah Latham points to the enrichment of environments as her philosophy and goal. “Our firm delivers experience, professionalism, creativity and simple solutions for each client's unique design needs,” she says. A talented and experienced yet youthful design firm offering services for residential and commercial projects alike, Latham Interiors works with homeowners, architects, contractors and other community members. “We strive to provide excellence and knowledge while building great relationships,” Latham says. Known for its stunning mountain masterpieces, Sun Valley has long had a distinct design aesthetic, but Latham says the traditional style has evolved to include more modern structures and aesthetics. “Clients are learning it's okay to be modern in the mountains!” she enthuses. Asked to describe the winter season in Sun Valley, Latham notes a renewal of community. “It always slows down with the weather, and everyone pulls together for the winter ahead,” she says. “It gets quieter and the locals relax. The holiday season is magical here, with horse-drawn sleighs, caroling, ice skating, hot chocolate, lights and skiing.”

A Saturday in Sun Valley

“To start the ideal Saturday, I would take my dog, Lucy, for an early morning run before my kids and husband are awake,” Latham says. “Then, I would make breakfast at home before joining the whole family for a bike ride. We would end the day by heading up to Redfish Lake to meet friends and barbecue for dinner.”

1. A modern mountain living room with a neutral palette was created to emphasize the owner's magnificent art collection. 2. This adorable little apartment was built for the homeowner's guests to come and enjoy themselves while visiting the valley. 3. Swiss modern in every way, this penthouse was created with the ultimate clean, sleek, modern feeling in mind.
